Pierre Bourdieu, having experienced social mobility in his life, describes his trajectory as 'an ascension to a place where I don't belong' (Bourdieu, 1992:117). Many people are drawn to Bourdieu's work and moved deeply by the connection they feel between his theories and their own experiences, as is the case for many of the authors of this book. This event is a celebration of our book's journey, but also a discussion and celebration of some of the author's own personal journeys with Bourdieu both in their work and personal lives. Contributors from the book will be speaking about their chapters which cover issues of class and racial inequality in education and society and also issues of reflexivity in research. Through this we explore how Bourdieu's tools can help us to uncover and understand contemporary forms of inequality whilst also exploring some theoretical developments the authors have made to his work.
