

Subjectivity and Research practice within Qualitative Research

Thursday 26th May 2016

Keynote Speakers:

Professor Gayle Letherby, Plymouth University

Dr. Gurnam Singh, Coventry University

Dr. Jonathan Harvey, University of Southampton

We invite you to this one day workshop event, to explore researcher subjectivity and positionality within the research process.

Subjectivity of qualitative researchers is present throughout the entire research process from selection of the research question, design of study, analysis phase through to writing up. Our subjectivity as researchers can serve to convey or silence the voices of research participants. The aim of this event is to explore and further develop our understanding about the relationship between subjectivity, reflexivity and our positionality as researchers within the research process. This will be facilitated by a range of learning opportunities throughout the day, providing an opportunity to generate ideas around this key subject area. The day should be beneficial to researchers at all stages of the research process.

Poster Presentation

There will be a poster presentation at lunchtime, and delegates are encouraged to submit posters outlining their research. If you wish to submit a poster, please contact the email address below with your name, contact details and poster title by Friday 13th May 2016. You may submit your poster upon arrival at the event.

Venue:

Room JAG137: Jaguar Building, Coventry University, CV1 5DL

Costs and Registration:

- £10 for BSA members
 - £25 for non-members
- (Lunch and refreshments included)

To book a place, please visit:

<http://portal.britsoc.co.uk/public/event/eventBooking.aspx?id=EVT10541>

For further information, please contact: aa8391@coventry.ac.uk