

Cultural Sociology Book Review Editor

Cultural Sociology (CUS) is looking for an editor to develop its book reviews section and to continue the journal's tradition of reviewing and discussing titles of interest to Cultural Sociologists.

Editorial Responsibilities

- Developing a lively, relevant book reviews section for the journal, publishing some book review content in every issue of the journal
- Working with fellow CUS Editorial colleagues to commission book reviews that contribute to the journal's strategic goals, including internationalization and diversity
- Editing book review content submitted to the journal
- Working with the BSA and SAGE to publicise journal book review content and activities and contribute to the journal's social media activities

Journal Editorial teams should reflect the diversity of BSA membership and include a variety of voices and perspectives, particularly those who are frequently underrepresented in academic publishing. We are particularly interested in hearing from applicants from minoritised communities. Early career researchers are encouraged to apply.

We welcome internationally based colleagues, in keeping with the journal's tradition of engaging with books written and published in languages other than English.

No editing experience is necessary but experience of publishing in academic journals is necessary for this role.

The Book Reviews Editor will be supported by the full editorial team, as well as by the BSA and SAGE. The journal strives to be an inclusive and supportive space where the new Book Review Editor will be able to develop new initiatives and book review content.

All Editors, including the book review editor, are BSA members throughout their term of office and previous engagement with the BSA is desirable.

Submission and editing of book reviews is done via ScholarOne Manuscripts. No prior experience of ScholarOne is needed but it is helpful. Training for ScholarOne Manuscripts will be provided.

The term of office is 3 years with the possibility of extension. The role would start in the summer of 2022.

Current Editorial Team

Nadya Jaworsky, Masaryk University, Czech Republic

Ming-Cheng Lo, University of California, Davis, US

Marcus Morgan, University of Bristol, UK

Christopher Thorpe, University of Exeter, UK

Rin Ushiyama, Queens University Belfast, UK

Applications

Interested teams should complete and submit a pro forma application of no more than 2 pages to Alison Danforth, BSA. Proposals will include the following:

- A statement of interest in the role and the role of book reviews in academic journals
- Short CV

The deadline for applications will be Thursday 2 June 2022, 17:00 London time.

To receive a pro forma application, please contact Alison Danforth,
Publications Manager: alison.danforth@britsoc.org.uk

Interested applicants may wish to speak informally to the current editors and are welcome to make contact:

Nadya Jaworsky

E: jaworsky@fss.muni.cz

Alison Danforth

BSA Publications Manager

Direct Dial: +44 (0)191 370 6634

E: alison.danforth@britsoc.org.uk