

Are you interested in being a Convenor of the BSA Sociology, Psychoanalysis and the Psychosocial Study Group?

BSA Sociology, Psychoanalysis and the Psychosocial Study Group Announces Call for New Convenor(s)

Since being re-launched, the Sociology, Psychoanalysis and the Psychosocial Study Group has worked to provide a productive and supportive network through which researchers working on matters relating to psychosocial approaches and psychoanalytically informed research in sociology can meet to present research findings and engage in dialogue and debate. The Study Group has struggled to meet and pursue its remit over the Covid 19 pandemic and successive lockdowns, however, we believe that the moment is right to reinvigorate the group with a refreshed leadership and motivational drive. The current Convenor is looking to hand over to a small team of new Convenors who can develop and expand the Study Group membership and activity.

While specific roles are often negotiated within the team of Convenors, tasks and responsibilities can include:

- Organising occasional events/workshops
- Maintaining the Study Group mailing list with JISCMail
- Liaising with the BSA, including writing a short annual report outlining Study Group activities
- Representing the study group at BSA Study Group meetings

Besides these duties, the new Convenors will be able to propose and introduce new initiatives which further the aims of the Study Group and represent the interests of its members.

The Convenor role is open to academics of any career stage and Early Career Researchers are encouraged to apply. Convenors must be BSA members and maintain their membership for the duration of their tenure in the role.

To apply, please email enquiries@britsoc.org.uk an expression of interest including a short statement of what you could bring to, and how you could benefit from, the role by Monday 18th March 2024.