

Assistant Professor – Sociology of Race and Ethnicity

The Department of Sociology in the Faculty of Arts & Science at the University of Toronto invites applications for a full-time tenure stream appointment in the Sociology of Race and Ethnicity. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor, with an anticipated start date of July 1, 2025.

Candidates must have earned a Ph.D. degree in Sociology or in a closely related field by the time of appointment, or shortly thereafter, with a demonstrated record of excellence in sociological research and teaching. We seek candidates whose research and teaching interests complement and enhance our existing departmental strengths. The successful candidate will be expected to pursue innovative and independent sociological research at the highest international level and to establish an outstanding, competitive, and externally funded research program.

Candidates must provide evidence of research excellence, which can be demonstrated by a record of publications in top-ranked and field-relevant peer-reviewed journals in Sociology and/or academic presses and/or forthcoming publications meeting high international standards in the discipline, the submitted research statement, presentations at significant conferences, awards and accolades, and strong endorsements from referees.

Evidence of excellence in teaching will be provided through teaching accomplishments relevant to Sociology, the teaching dossier (with required materials outlined below) submitted as part of the application, as well as strong letters of reference.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience.

The academic appointment and teaching responsibilities will be at the University's downtown Toronto (St. George) campus. The University of Toronto offers opportunities for collaborative and interdisciplinary research and teaching and actively encourages innovative scholarship. Toronto is the intellectual and economic hub of Canada, and the city is renowned for its cosmopolitanism and multiculturalism while it is also the safest city of its size in North America. As a large department working in a wide range of subfields, the Department of Sociology is very highly ranked globally for its excellence and innovation in research and teaching.

All qualified candidates are invited to apply online by clicking on the link below. Applicants must submit a cover letter describing current and future research interests; a current curriculum vitae; a recent writing sample; and a teaching dossier that includes a teaching statement, sample course materials, and teaching evaluations. Equity, diversity and inclusion are essential to academic excellence as articulated in University of Toronto's Statement on Equity, Diversity and Excellence. We seek candidates who share these values and who demonstrate throughout the application materials their commitment and efforts to advance equity, diversity, inclusion, and the promotion of a respectful and collegial learning and working environment.

Applicants must provide the name and contact information of three references. The University of Toronto's recruiting tool will automatically solicit and collect letters of reference from each referee the day after an application is submitted. Applicants remain responsible for ensuring that references submit letters (on letterhead, dated and signed) by the closing date. More details on the automatic reference letter collection, including timelines, are available in the candidate FAQ.

Submission guidelines can be found at <http://uoft.me/how-to-apply>. Your CV and cover letter should be uploaded into the dedicated fields. Please combine additional application materials into one or two files in PDF/MS Word format. If you have any questions about this position, please contact sociology.ea@utoronto.ca.

All application materials, including recent reference letters, must be received by September 3, 2024.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.
