Aims of the Study Group:

The Global Histories and Sociology Study Group has been renamed, revived, and is seeking new members. Our aims are to provide a forum for sociologists/social scientists who interface with historical research and methods in their research and/or teaching. This is achieved through a range of activities including:

- Facilitating collaboration and the exchange of ideas by organising conference streams, plenaries and regular meetings.
- Providing a structure for the dissemination of information by establishing online and offline communication platforms such as email lists and a web presence.
- Promoting interdisciplinary dialogue with colleagues in the fields of sociology, history, law, anthropology, media studies, political science, and cultural studies.

Review of the Year 2025:

The group was re-established and renamed in 2025. However, we have planned a series of future events below:

- Symposium: '1885 and its long shadow: sexual offences in historical context' held online on the 11 July 2025.
- Reading Group: 'Dialoguing with History' with the aim to bridge historical and contemporary perspectives.
- Future Activities: We are discussing the planning of additional future activities including speaker events, cross-disciplinary conversations, workshops, and annual conferences.
