

The BSA Food Study Group is seeking new co-convenors to lead the group. Are you interested in becoming a BSA Food Study Group co-convenor?

We are looking for individuals who are passionate about encouraging the sociological analysis of food, fostering dialogue across disciplines, and promoting engagement beyond academia.

The role of the Food Study Group co-convenor includes:

- Liaising with the BSA to organise events (such as seminars, workshops, and reading groups) across the UK, as well as the international Food & Society Conference, which takes place every two years.
- Coordinating the Food Study Group's participation in the BSA Annual Conference.
- Maintaining an accurate membership list and using the JiscMail e-news bulletin to share information with members.
- Representing the Study Group at BSA Study Group meetings.

Please note that co-convenors must be paid-up members of the BSA and must sign the BSA Study Group Terms of Reference.

There is an overview of the group here: <https://www.britsoc.co.uk/groups/study-groups/foodscoff-scottish-colloquium-on-food-and-feeding-study-group/>

Co-convening the Study Group is an excellent opportunity to connect with others who share an interest in the sociology of food and to help shape the future development of the field.

If you are interested in volunteering for this position, please register your interest at Jackie.Murphy@britsoc.org.uk by Friday 3 July 2026. We welcome informal enquiries.

Please note that if no convenor is found before this date the BSA Food study group will become inactive and cease to exist.
